

Dear Friends:

Today I would like to extend my sympathy to the families of the two children shot in Gardena, CA yesterday. If you don't know a misguided child brought a gun to school for protection and ended up shooting one student in the neck and a little girl in the head. This was a very sad incident, but I want you to know that this did not happen in vain. These children - uninhibited, blameless, and beautiful - were the victims of a culture of juvenile crime and violence. This is not only unfortunate but it is a wakeup call to us all. They are the indirect casualties of a righteous campaign for love and peace.

And so this day after in a real sense their voices are crying out to all of humanity. They have something to say to every human being that has failed to get involved with the many campaigns and crusades to save our children. They have something to say to every politician who has decided to just go along to get along. They have something to say to any American that believes the focus of juvenile crime and violence should be on incarceration and not prevention and intervention practices. They have something to say to every naysayer that believes a prisoner like me has nothing to offer to the efforts being made to prevent incidents like this from happening. They have something to say to the media that consistently refuses to answer my emails and letters about me assisting in the fight to save our youth so they won't end up dead or in jail. They say to us that we must be equally concerned about future incidents of this nature as we are about this incident.

Now I say to you America, I've write the blueprint to save our children from crime, drugs and violence. I've written the blueprint to stop children from going to prison. Will you have the heart to read: How To Save Our Children From Crime, Drugs and Violence and How To Stop Your Children From Going To Prison? Will you have the courage to say I am will to work with Cedric Dean to stop the violence and killing in America? Will you have the courage to contact your local media outlets, school and government officials, parents and preachers, and tell them that the solution to their juvenile crime problem can be found in those books that were written specifically to prevent incidents of this nature from happening.

I love you all with the Love that Jesus commanded us to have - unconditional love for my neighbor. And I say to you that this is something that we must deal with everyday. That's the only way we can and we will make a difference.

Yours for the cause of Love and Peace,

Cedric Dean
